

LOUISVILLE, MISS.

OUR PAPER.—If our readers will bear with us, another week, we will endeavour to fill up both sides of our extra with Tax Collector's Sales, and give them a portion of reading matter.

We are requested to state that the Rev. Mr. Holly will preach the Funeral of Doct. Newton L. Cain, in this place, on Sunday the 11th inst.

There will be a Masonic procession at the same time.

JOHN C. COLT.

We notice in the Columbus Missisippi, "Democratic Whig," an extract from a private letter, to a gentleman in that place, stating that the notorious John C. Colt, who killed Mr. Samuel Adams, in New York, in 1810, and was to have been hung on the 18th ult. Committed Suicide in prison, a few minutes previous to the time that he was to have been executed, by stabbing himself to the heart with a dirk, which had been conveyed to him by his paramour, concealed under her clothes.—Colt was married to his Mistress at 12 o'clock of the same day.

There has been a large Democratic meeting at Jackson, where there were many important Resolutions past. We will endeavor to publish the whole proceedings in our next paper.

TO TAKE GREASE OUT OF SILK.—If a little powdered magnesia be applied on the wrong side of the silk as soon as the spot is discovered, it is a never failing remedy—the stain disappearing as if by magic.

A lady asked a minister if she might pay attention to dress and fashion, without being proud.—"Madame," replied the minister, "whenever you see the tail of a fox out of a hole, you may be sure the fox is there also."

HYPOCRITES.—Hypocrites soar up to Heaven, not like the Lark to sing praises, but like the hawk to pounce upon their prey. When they look up to the Mount of Olives, it is to build an oil mill—and if they weep by the brook of Kedron, they are watching to catch fish, or throw some one into it, and when they kneel, it is like the soldiers in the front rank, to load and fire. They call all mankind their brethren, and treat them as the Turkish Sultans do their relatives.

HUMAN HAPPINESS.—It is well perhaps, that our experience of the hollows of human happiness is progressive. It would be too much for the young to learn, by a single effort of wisdom, that every vision of the poetry of life must be laid aside on life's threshold, that the cajolery of the schoolmaster to his new pupil, the undue enjoyment of early days are granted to delude us into patience.—Trite as it is, the comparison of the youth of the year comes home to all. Instead of contenting ourselves with violets, we waste the spring in longing for roses; and when the roses come, and we fancy them less sweet, less beautiful than anticipation painted, we look back repentant to the early flowers—our violets are withered, our roses withering. Nothing remains but the sober verdure of the autumn of our days.

MR. CALHOUN IN MICHIGAN.

The Constitutional Democrat, a paper published at Detroit, and edited with great ability, makes the following observations in relation to Mr. Calhoun.

John C. Calhoun. This distinguished and talented individual is mentioned in various portions of the Union, as a candidate for the Presidency. This accounts for the virulence and abuse which is so lavishly heaped of late, upon his devoted head, by the opposition press.—That he possesses talents of the highest order all will admit; and that his long experience in public life, and his steady and unerring devotion to principle, eminently fits him to fill any station, however elevated, within the gift of the American people, candid men of all parties, will readily admit.

It becomes us not at the present moment, to predict, with certainty, that Mr. Calhoun will be the Democratic candidate for the Presidency, at the ensuing canvass; but it is perfectly evident that he is rapidly gaining ground in the affections of the people of all parts of the Union. The prejudice which has, in time past, existed in various quarters against the man, and the immutable principles which it has ever been his pride to advocate, is rapidly subsiding every where; and whether he should or should not come before the people as a candidate for the Presidency, at some future period, it will be soon satisfied to the numerous and devoted friends of this distinguished and talented statesman that his motives, his character and the principles of which he has been and still is the unwavering advocate, are beginning to be duly and properly appreciated by the Democracy at large.

It may be proper to remark that here in Michigan, Mr. Calhoun is not without friends and admirers; and we hesitate not to express the belief that should his name be brought tangibly before the station in question, such a nomination would meet with a hearty response from a respectable portion of the Democracy of Michigan.

While there may be and doubtless are, other distinguished individuals mentioned as probable candidates for the Presidency, who, from personal and local considerations, are equally prominent in the minds of our Democratic fellow citizens all are willing to admit that Mr. Calhoun is a sound exponent of the great principles which we all advocate at the present period—and that his honesty of purpose, his settled devotion to the great principles of Constitutional Democracy, and his long experience and distinguished abilities, are fully and properly appreciated by all who are willing to practice, as well as profess, the principles of Democracy.

DIGNITY.—We dislike what the world calls a dignified man—one whose intense vanity and egotism make him inaccessible. Such a precious piece of mortality is like the hedgehog—approach him as you may, the bristling quills of self stand out in such bold relief, that (even) though you offer the fellest food, you are certain to get your fingers pricked.—Boston Bee.

A clear, unblemished character comprehends not only the integrity that will not off, but that will not submit to any injury; and whenever it belongs to an individual, or to a community, it is the foundation of peace, of independence and safety. Private credit is wealth; public honor is security; the feather that adorns the royal bird supports his flight; strip him of his plumage and you fix him to the earth.—Junius.
